Canada Needs More People

In the development of the natural resources of Canada, and the resultant increase in traffic for the transportation systems of the Dominion, it is to be found the only permanent solution of the problem now presented by the annually recurring, and increasing, deficits in the operation of the National Railways. This was the view expressed in this column last week, and further study of the question only serves to confirm and strengthen that opinion.

It is gratifying to note, too, that the soundness of this suggested solution is being urged more and more upon the Federal Government and the people of Canada. Such influential men as Hon. T. A. Crerar, President Beatty of the C.P.R., Sir Frederick Williams Taylor, general manager of the Bank of Montreal, and other leaders in Canadian affairs, support this view.

It is in the development of our natural resources lies the solution of our railway problems—and if increased business will solve the railway problem it will likewise assist to solve other national problems of taxation and economics—then the question presents itself as to which of our many resources attention should first be turned as best calculated to quickly respond to well directed Government and individual effort. Also, in the light of existing world conditions, which of our resources will make the strongest appeal to the people of the world? Again, which of our resources, if more fully developed, will react upon and operate to bring about the development of other resources?

There can be no two opinions as to the richest, the most important, the basic natural resources of this country. It is to be found in the agricultural lands spread over the Dominion from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Valuable as are the mines, the forests, the fisheries of Canada, and necessary as they are to the upbuilding of a strong and self-contained nation, they individually and collectively take second place to agriculture.

The first essential to the development of the untitled acres of Canada's fertile agricultural lands is population. Without people the lands must remain idle and unproductive. Lacking workers on the land, crops cannot be produced. Unless our unsettled lands are peopled with workers who will produce, and through their production create traffic for the railways, all the economies in the world will not result in making those railways profitable.

Furthermore, it is only through the placing of people on the land that the necessary demand will be created for manufactured products of all kinds, the demand for which will, in turn, force the development of our mineral and timber resources, and thereby create still further traffic for the railways and provide employment for an ever increasing body of artisans and skilled workers in shop and factory.

Another million of people settled on farms in Canada and producing wealth from the soil would result in such a volume of produce for export in the shape of grains and livestock that many of our non profitable lines of railway would become paying propositions, because for every dollar's worth of produce shipped out, the people on the land would purchase a dollar's worth of goods to be shipped in.

Yet there are people in this country who are advocating the adoption of the most stringent regulations to prevent immigration into Canada. Nothing could be more shortsighted. All will agree that the bars should be kept up against the mentally, morally and physically deficient. Canada does not want such as these, who are not producers, but who become a menace and burden to the state. But Canada does need and must have a large increase in immigration of the right type of people if it is to develop and prosper.

The most prosperous period in Canadian history was during those years when immigration was flowing into this country at an unprecedented rate and the vacant lands of the Dominion were being brought under cultivation. Those were the years when, with the incoming of these pioneer settlers, our cities, towns and villages grew apace; our railways were busy and constructing new branch lines as feeders; our manufacturers were constructing larger factory buildings and employing many more workers, and activity was manifest in the development of natural resources of all kinds.

With the falling off in immigration, and with large national obligations incurred for transportation and other services which were provided to meet the expected continuance of the influx of new settlers, the slump came. Then the war put a stop to all immigration for over five years, while at the same time it took its toll of millions of human lives.

The opportunity again presents itself to secure a large volume of immigration to Canada, and immigrants of the right type, too. Sound national policy demands that full advantage be taken of the opportunity. If there ever was a time when Canada needed new people to assist in the development of our great resources, it is now. Immigration should be encouraged, and there should be no trouble in selecting and eliminating the small percentage of undesirable at the port of embarkation. The great majority of immigrants come to Canada to better their condition, and have a fairly clear idea in mind of what they are going to do. They should be encouraged to come, and a helping hand and all reasonable assistance and a warm welcome extended on their arrival.

Good Profit in Poultry

Alberta Farmer Who Kept Record
Shows that Money can be Made
Out of this Side Line.

An example of the profits that may be made with poultry on western prairie farms is given by W. E. Deckard who farms near Bassano, Alta. On January 1st, 1920, he had on his farm two hundred and fifty-eight White Leghorn hens. From these hens they obtained and sold eggs to the value of $656.35. They used and set eggs to the value of $283.90. They also sold $103.79 worth of chickens and the value of the poultry they used at table was $14.10. This makes a total of $1,060.14. Against this feed to the value of $72.99 was bought, and about $200 of grain raised on the farm was given to the hens. The net profit, therefore, amounted to $786.15—not a bad return from a side line.

THANKFUL MOTHERS

Once a mother has used Baby's Own Tablets for her little ones she would use nothing else. The Tablets give such results that the mother has nothing but words of praise and thankfulness for them. Among the thousands of mothers throughout Canada who praise the Tablets is Mrs. David A. Anderson, of Glasgow, N.S., who writes:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my children and from my experience I would not be without them. I would urge every other mother to keep a box of the Tablets in the house. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach, drive out constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers and make teething easy. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Cardston Irrigation Project

Alberta Government Will Irrigate
About Fifteen Thousand Acres.

The Alberta Government consulting engineer, D. W. Hays, has just completed an examination on behalf of the government of the United Irrigation District, which has been formed for the purpose of irrigating about fifteen thousand acres of first-class farm land near Cardston in Southern Alberta.

Mr. Hays says the project is quite feasible and is, in fact, the simplest proposition he has ever met with. There are no difficulties to surmount and the construction work can be carried out without any large or expensive machinery. It is expected that work on this project will be begun this summer.

For years I have never considered my stock of household remedies complete until a bottle of Minard's Liniment was included. For a time I was doubtful of its value, but it excels, and I know of no better remedy than a sure cold in the head. It will give me immediate relief, but to inhale from the bottle through my nose. And as to my supply of veterinary remedies it is situated as it has been proven its value. A recent experience in reclaiming what was supposed to be a lost section of a valuable cow, after that again demonstrated its great worth and prompts me to recommend it in the highest terms to all who have a herd of cows, large or small. I think I am safe in saying among all the parent medicines there is none that covers as large a field of usefulness as does Minard's Liniment. A real treasure good for man or beast.

Effective Plan to Destroy Hoppers

Flame Throwers in France Meet
Success in Exterminating Locusts.

How the flame thrower troops of the French army provided large quantities of freshly roasted meat for the poultry of the country and at the same time rid the fields of crop-destroying grasshoppers and locusts is told by Dr. L. Howard, chief entomologist of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, who re-cently inspected insect-fighting methods of that country. The hoppers were swept into great heaps by living circles of soldiers and then exterminated by the flame.

Local & General

All Rebekahs in the Crossfield district (whether members of Crossfield Lodge or not) are cordially invited to attend the Anniversary Service on May 8th, in the Union Church.

Next Sunday, May 1st, at Union Church the Choir will sing "Sun of my Soul," and Mr. Waldoek the solo "Jesus is all the world to me."

The next regular meeting of the Women's Guild will be held at the home of Mrs. D. J. MacKay, on Thursday, May 5th.

The Inverlea Ladies Aid will meet at the home of Mrs. Garwood, on Thursday, May 5th, at 2:30 p. m. Election of officers. Meetings are held every two weeks during the summer months, at the homes of the members.

"Music hath charms," and this was clearly shown at the musical service at Union Church last Sunday night. By the kind permission of the Congregational Church, Calgary, where Mr. Arlidge is choir leader, he was able to be present and conducted the music throughout. In fact Mr. Arlidge has the unique distinction at the present time of being conductor of three choirs—at Gleichen and Crossfield Union Church, in addition to the above-mentioned. Many expressions of appreciation have been heard since the service which was evidently much enjoyed by those present. The duet "Hold Thou my hand," by Miss Pullan and Mr. Arlidge; the solo "Just for to-day," by Mrs. D. J. MacKay; and the anthem by the Choir "Nearer My God to Thee," were all well given; the solo "Fear not ye O Israel," by Mr. Arlidge was exceptionally good. It is to be hoped that another musical service can be arranged in the near future. The Choir is holding a Concert at the Church, Monday May 5.

M. M. Meckenburg, Sight Specialist, will be in Didsbury on Saturday, May 7th, any one who require glasses or are suffering from eye trouble would do well to take this chance. Mr. Meckenburg will not pay another visit till August, so he is going to New York to attend the American Optometric Association.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Institute will be held in the Union Church, on Saturday, April 30th. The chief item of interest for this time will be a talk from Mr. W. McRory on Gardening in general. Everyone realize that practical hints from a good local gardener will bring better results than theory or gardening from a Nurseryman's catalogue, so every member should strive to be present. Vocal numbers will also be rendered by Mrs. D. J. MacKay, so that an enjoyable afternoon is assured. Tea will be served. A small collection will be taken up to meet running expenses, everyone may feel welcome.

"Hello," exclaimed his father, "where've you been?"

"I stayed with Bill Paisley last night," explained Boy. "You know we had Amos Broadbrook locked up at his place. We fell asleep for a few minutes and Amos got away. Somebody outside helped him—his brother Hank likely. Anyway, he's got clean away."

"And where do you suppose he has gone?" asked Halibut.

"Across the border likely," returned Boy. "We're 'bored' after him, sir, and we've got to start right now, 'cause the creek's risin' and gettin' dangerous. In half an hour we can't get across."

Halibut looked at Big McTavish, then he turned to Boy.

"Do you think he'll go across the line?" he asked.

"Then, let the poor beggar go. I've promised Gloss that I won't prosecute him."

Boy whistled.

"Well—" he commenced, then turned abruptly away.

He was glad, glad, glad. He did not know why, nor care why. He could not bear to think of anything of the bush-world being shut up within a chance of escape. He passed outside and Halibut followed him.

"Boy," said the big man, "I guess you think me an old fool, don't you?"

"He went over and laid his hand affectionately on the young man's arm."

"I guess I'm getting old and rather childish, Boy. I've just received one of God's great gifts and there is nothing much in my old heart this spring morning but joy—joy I've had to do without for many weary years. Well, Boy, you know how the old trees of the bush lean when they've lived their full years. You know how they tope and sag. You have seen them do it, haven't you? But sometimes a strong young sapling props them up and they go on living and throwing out their leaves—but they're not standing alone."

His arm slipped about Boy's shoulders.

"Boy," he said huskily, "I need a prop. I want to hang on because I've just found real happiness. But I'm sagging, lad; I'm just an old tree."

Boy turned and grasped the Colonel's hand. He felt a tear splash down and his throat tightened and burned.

"I guess I understand," he said softly. "I've grown deep into—all this, and there's always a sapling you can lean on if you care to."

He sprang away down the path toward the log-hut and the Colonel watched him, a deep glow in his heart. From the kitchen came the savory smell of frying bacon and Gloss's happy voice singing an old-fashioned song.

When they all sat down to breakfast, Big McTavish bowed his head and asked Gloss's blessing on his bounty in these words:

"We thank thee for feedin' us, O God. We thank thee for thy many mercies, and we thank thee greatly for the sunshine after the darknesses."

And Granny from her end of the table added a fervent "Amen."

After breakfast the Colonel drew Big McTavish aside and held a whispered conference with him. Then he turned to the "little man" and, holding her hand in both of his, said:

"There is no reward that earth can give you great enough for me and mine, but the great reward awaits you all. I have received a great and wonderful blessing—stroking the brown curls of the tall girl beside him, 'ah, so great a blessing! I am going now, but I will come back soon, very soon, again.'"

He turned, his eyes blinking, and glanced about the room at the others.

"God bless you all," he said heartily, and strode outside, followed by Big McTavish and Boy.

Coming up the path was a tired, dripping horse, bestrode by a weary, dripping rider.

"Dick," murmured the Colonel, "Of course, I might have known that he would come searching for me."

"Why, lad," he called, "you're a bigger nippy than I thought you. You're half drowned!"

Boy can forward and helped support the man as he mounted.

"What's wrong, Dick, lad?" asked Halibut, catching sight of the new arrival's face.

Dick fumbled in one of his pockets.

"Here's a letter, sir. I found it tacked to a tree outside the town, sir."

Halibut took the letter. It was a dirty, crumpled thing, and scrawled words were the words, "Kenal Halibut."

"Listen," said the Colonel, "it's from Amos Broadbrook. This is what he says:

"I intended to git even with youfer an' Wilton but I have skidder fer the stats but I have burnt the stor an' hope you will be plesed I am goin away an' haint ever comin back don't put your dorges enter me I go to live to state."

"Amos broadbrook," "The men exchanged glances.

"Did he do it, Dick?" asked the Colonel.

"Yes, sir, the place was in shashes as I passed."

"So endeth the—" began Halibut, but he was abruptly checked by a wet, bedraggled soldier who hurled itself against him with a low whine of joy.

"Old 22," cried the Colonel, "you poor, crippled old devil, Zip. Where—how—"

He staggered back, wiping the wet kiss from his cheek, and tears of laughter stood in his eyes.

"'E' jist wouldn't stop 'ome, sir," stammered Dick. "'E' jist wouldn't stop 'ome, sir, 't' g'it 'u' 'e' did, sir."

"The Colonel said a most extraordinary thing."

"He'd crawl through hell for me, boys, that old dog. And he's come to-day because we've always shared our joys and sorrows together. Come and meet little Gloss, Zip."

CHAPTER XXXI.

A Mat'ng Time.

Spring held the world of the Bush-whackers in her soft arms. She awoke the sleeping things with her warm breath. Her light shone on land and marsh and sky. The great trees shivered and stretched their long arms wakefully. The dry rushes along the creek quivered and sang in low whispers, as the blue waters laved their drowsy roots. When the sun flashed out at intervals the quiet waters of the flats would break, here and there, and the flashing body of a pipe would leap upward with a mighty flop and, tumbling back, would twirl and dart from rush-clump to rush-clump, her mate, a long, mottled fish, following slowly, one length behind, his blue-green dorsals standing up above the water like a tiny sail. Of the wood and marsh mating time, the strong, swift fish claim'd first right. They sought the quiet waters even when ice still craved the ground, onward and outward. Up against the cold current a school of them would move steadily, pining and musing along, a fragment detaching itself where the rat-run offered a haven, a fragment detaching itself where the quiet water of the flats rested beneath the white, smoky clouds. This was the spawning season, their play-time and love-time. In the early morning sunbeams they would dart and leap and play until the shallow waters of the rushland were white with foam, and there, after the manner of their kind, they would mate and drift and save into the deeper waters again in twos and threes and fives, and seek the harbored spawning-beds among the rushes further inland.

Next came the wee brown song-thrush, tumbling an animated fragment, from a fleeing snowcloud, dropping from the sky and alighting with a low chirp of joy on the bare twig of a baby tree of the woodland. Its sweet, shrill little song, "Chirp and glad, would travel into the quiet places of the wood. "Gray-bird" it was called and last to leave in dreary fall, first to come back in springtime, it was Dak David's choice of all the birds he loved so well.

Old Fort Ellis and Sioux Indians

Crossing the Plains to Fort Carlton
Summer 1875.

By O-G-E-MAS-ES (Little Clerk).

(Copyrighted)

The husband of the insulted woman was particularly bloodthirsty and quite mad with rage. The young braves backed him up and were searching everywhere for A—; no doubt it would have gone hard with him if his hiding place had been discovered. Our interpreter talked until he was hoarse trying to make some sort of settlement that night; they however would not listen. They would not smoke, but clamored for the guilty man and threatened to burn the fort over our heads. Of course we could on no account surrender him to their far from tender mercies. Next day, by good luck, Chief Factor McDonald returned across than expected and there was a Grand Council held in the large Indian room of the fort, some forty of the leading Sioux being present.

It was a fine sight and quite an education for us youngsters to see this thin spare Scotchman walking up and down before the assembled warriors and rating them as if they were a lot of school boys. I only remember the general tenor of his remarks which were chiefly delivered through an interpreter, though at times he would break into broken Sioux interspersed with Gaelic and Cree.

The speech follows:
"Did you never play the fool yourselves when full of fire water? The woman is not hurt. What is all this fuss about? You want until my back is turned and then rush in here at night trying to scare everybody." Shaking his fist at them, "I tell you, Sioux, if you are not more civil I will report you to the Queen's Red Coat Soldiers at Fort Pelly. You cannot go back across the line as the Big Knives are waiting for you there. The Sioux nation will be wiped out like this" (clapping his hands together), and so on in much the same strain.

McDonald was right. The Mounted Police were being organized at Fort Pelly that summer and the very fact of their red coats (whose numbers of course were very much exaggerated) had created a tremendous impression amongst all the Indian tribes.

After a long pow-wow, the damage to the Sioux husband's injured feelings was compensated by a substantial payment, which amount was duly charged to the guilty clerk's account, while he was smuggled out of the fort and sent back to his post with orders to stay there. Poor sinner, the company put up with his failings for some years and then dismissed him, and from that his course was downward.

A peculiar incident took place with the Sioux a little later on. A small band of Crees had come in from the plains and camped on the west side of the fort (the Sioux were on the east). They were well supplied with buffalo robes, dried meat and pemican, also lots of ponies. This was very attractive to the Sioux who were as poor as the Crees were well off. They finally made friendly overtures to the Crees, which were accepted, and then challenged them to a great gamble, which was promptly taken up. I had never watched any Indian gambling so was very much interested and had young McKay explain the procedure, which was simply a matter of guessing right as to which hand held the button or whatever was used.

The players, some eight or ten in number, sat opposite one another in a large tepee, their laps covered with a colored blanket. Tom-toms were beating gently, louder, then furiously, while a continued "Aha, Aha" song went on in chorus. The hands were concealed, often waved in the air, and finally held rigid when the opponent made his choice. The stakes were all piled up in plain sight. I specially noted an elderly blind Sioux sitting behind their players. He they constantly referred to when big stakes were up and invariably won. So much so, that after playing all night the Crees were beaten to a finish, losing nearly all their wealth. The fame of the blind Sioux spread far and wide, and though many Indians came in to try their fortunes, they were invariably losers. Was it telepathy, mind reading, or what? Anyway with his prophetic insight he revived the fortunes of the Sioux, and they shortly moved camp and I heard no more of them.

These Sioux, or Dacotah Indians, were not a pleasant people. Many of both sexes were handsome, but they nearly all had a hard, fierce expression, and a pleasant face was a rarity. Their tepees were scrupulously clean and tidily kept, and they were all very particular about their personal appearance. One could not forget in dealing with them that their hands were red with much innocent blood of white people, and when it came to torturing helpless prisoners the women, it was claimed were the worst offenders.

The Grand Yearly Council of the Hudson's Bay Company had been sitting at Fort Carlton and we were all anxiously waiting for the return of Chief Commissioner Donald A. Smith, and at last he and his party, driving furiously as usual with relays of ponies all along the route making from eighty to one hundred and twenty-five miles daily, arrived at Ellis. They only stayed for dinner, handed over the minutes of council affecting Swan River to Mr. McDonald, and then pushed on to Fort Garra. Next day I was summoned to the office and informed that I had been ordered by council to Fort Simpson on the Mackenzie River, Mr. McDonald, remarking dryly, that the temperature up there would tend to cool my tropical blood. His last remark, however, made me furious. You will have your dogs here as they cannot go in the boats; and now you can go. Well, I loved these dogs as a brother, and the dogs they worshipped me, and so I separated from them with a heavy heart.

I had referred to this in a former article. Part Husky, part Scotch Stag Hound, in shape and size they took after the Scotch father, Herod, Nero, Hero and Moro, a very famous train, and no doubt when I travelled in company with the chief factor last winter he had noted their long winging gait and staying qualities and desired to have them for his own. I had bought these dogs as pups, reared and trained them, spared fish enough to feed them in old hours, and by hook or crook I intended keeping them.

In the meantime, Mr. Brown announced, the Government has heard nothing from the new owners as to their intention in connection with the proposal to build a railway, to the mine. WIND ON THE STOMACH Quickly Relieved

It is a good thing to know just what to do when gas belching starts. I belched gas continually. A neighbor urged me to use 'Nervine.' I took it in hot, sweetened water and got quick relief. I will never again be without this valuable remedy. Revolt in Southern Russia Is Spreading

Reported That Don Cossacks Have Joined Anti-Bolshevik Leader.

Copenhagen.—The special correspondent of the Belgische Tijdschrift at Helsingfors says he learned that the peasant revolt in Southern Russia is spreading like wildfire. The reports say the Governments of Tambov, Voronezh, Kursk and Samara, are in the hands of the rebels and the fall of Kharkov is imminent. Divisions eight and nine of the Bolshevik army, sent to the relief of Kharkov, both were cut off from their base of operations. The Don Cossacks have joined General Antonoff, the anti-Bolshevik leader.

The revolt is said to be extremely serious for the Soviet Government, the districts affected being the richest in Russia.

Grain Barges Looted

Foodstuffs for Vienna Are Sold to Illicit Dealers.

Vienna.—Alicious looting of grain barges bound from Jugo Slavia to Vienna, has led to more than 100 arrests. According to the newspapers the sailors have an arrangement with illicit dealers. They sound the alarm to indicate what kind of cargo they carry, the smugglers put off in boats and buy all they want, which is resold through the left-hand trade at an advance.

More than 50 carloads of foodstuffs are reported to have been thus looted.

Death of Venerable Priest

Father Dandurand Maintained His Fidelity to Very Last

Winnipeg.—Rev. Father Damase Dandurand, O.M.I., who on March 23 last celebrated the 102nd anniversary of his birth, died on Wednesday at St. Boniface, Man. He was the oldest Catholic priest in the world, being born on March 23, 1819, in the village of La Prairie, Que., of pure French parentage.

The aged priest has been an active worker in the priesthood since the day of his ordination nearly 80 years ago. He was the first French-Canadian to enter the order of the Oblates of Mary Immaculate, that band of devoted missionaries who were practically responsible for all of the pioneer work of the Roman Catholic Church in the west.

The venerable priest played an important role at Ottawa about 47 years ago, where he was vicar general of the then diocese.

Select Laxative Medicine With Great Care

In debility and weakness, medicine should be mild and far reaching. Many pills and purgatives are too hard, are drastic instead of curative. Excessive action is always followed by depression, and knowing this Dr. Hamilton devised his pills of Mandrake and Butternut so as to mildly increase liver and kidney activity, so as to flush out the system by toning and regulating the bowels. Thus do Dr. Hamilton's Pills eliminate poisons from the body, thus do they restore clearness to the skin, thus do they renew health and strength. To keep your system in healthy good working order, regulate it with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25¢ at all dealers or The Catarrhoxone Co., Montreal.

TOBACCO HEART

Every Smoker Read This

Tobacco does not seem to affect all alike. Many men enjoy their smoke, live to a good old age, and apparently suffer no ill-effects from the use of the weed.

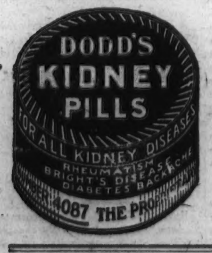

There are others though, on whose heart and nervous system tobacco produces the most serious results. It causes palpitation, pain in the heart, and irregularity of its beat, makes the hands tremble, sets the nerves on edge, and causes shortness of breath and loss of sleep.

To counteract this demoralizing influence on the heart and nerves there is no remedy to equal Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

The mild cheer the heart beat strong and steady, restore tone and vigor to the nerves, and remove all the evil results of the tobacco habit.

Mr. D. McKillop, Coxheath, N.S., writes—I was using too much tobacco, and got so I could not sleep at night, my hands used to tremble something awful, and I suffered terrible from pain in my heart. I told a friend about it, and he advised me to get your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I took two boxes and they gave great satisfaction.

An American View Of Problems Confronting War-Stricken Europe

(Richard Spillane in the Philadelphia Public Ledger)

If the French or British or Italians, or any of the Europeans, do anything or say anything that smacks of ingratitude to America, be tolerant. War has left an aftermath of problems that are so difficult of solution and in some instances are becoming so complicated that they must be excused if, at times, they give an exhibition of what, in the case of an individual, would be called "nerves."

Take the case of the British. They must control a large part of the trade of the world or they cannot thrive. They draw raw materials from all sections of the globe and send back finished goods. If they lose their large markets their industries are imperiled. India is their largest single market for cotton goods. Without the trade of India Lancashire would be hard hit. In the war period Japan and America made heavy inroads in India. Great Britain has recovered considerable of the business, but is far from being back in her old position.

Before the war Great Britain had a pronounced advantage in overseas trade by reason of shipping coal to many parts of the world—always having an outgoing cargo—and thereby being able to offer moderate freight rates on the return voyage. Now Great Britain has lost control of coal. Production prices in Wales and England are so excessive that British coal exports have declined from 7,000,000 tons a year in pre-war times to about one-third of that amount today. If Great Britain is to recover her position on the sea it must be through development of oil supplies. In this she is far behind America.

Through mandate and by conquest Great Britain added to her domain, owing to the war, 1,500,000 square miles of territory—an area about equal to all of the United States east of the Mississippi. It is questionable whether this is an asset or a liability.

It is not unlikely the British, in desperate endeavor to recover their foreign commerce, will do many things that will irritate Americans, especially as America has a merchant marine second only to the British. In two big markets—South America and the Far East—the British and Americans will be sharply competitive. The British will have the advantage of long experience and well-established banking and commercial agencies. The Americans will be favored by ability to finance new developments and make government and other loans that influence trade.

France, always mercurial, has swung from excessive praise of America to carping criticism. Why not? By legislative act we have deprived her of the great market for one of her chief products—wine. The millions of dollars she got yearly for her champagnes are cut off. She is punished additionally by the debasement of the franc when, with it, she is compelled to buy American goods. From champagne, still wines and the tourist trade she nearly balanced her import trade.

Now she faces an adverse trade balance, aggravated greatly by the loss of her wine and tourist income. Struggling under a burden of taxation which no other people would endure without repudiation or revolt, and feeling that she has been deserted by her friends after she has suffered the most of all the nations in the war, she should be excused if at times she indulges in temperamental outbursts.

All the European countries that entered the American market lately for money have a grievance. They had to pay a price that seemed excessive. It was high, very high. Nothing but hard need would have led them to submit to such charges. They felt toward America as a person sorely grieved does after an experience with a money lender who is without conscience. It is futile to explain that the rule of supply and demand obtains as to money as to everything else.

Out of all this there is likely to be more and more unpleasant criticism of America, largely unwarranted and because of that more difficult for a proud and quick-tempered people to bear.

But Europe is sick, sick in mind, sick in body and overwrought by the nerve strain of years of war. Only a few of the countries of the continent are convalescent.

Europe needs help and must have it from America. It must be furnished and it will be furnished, but it will be furnished sparingly at first, as food is furnished to the ill in the very early stages of convalescence.

And if the patient is querulous, even to a point almost beyond reason, America must not misunderstand but must be tolerant, even tolerant, as we are with the sick.

That is what those who know most about Europe's woes and Europe's needs desire.

Summer All the Year Round

The Earth Is Swinging Toward a Warm Period.

Once upon a time the British Isles were as cold as Greenland, and it was winter nearly all the year round. Earlier than that there was a time when cinnamon and palm grew where London is now, and it was summer all the year round and every year. Earlier still the land was buried under ice and snow, and still earlier (when the sources of British coal were being laid down) it was covered by a hot, steaming, tropical forest. In fact, the earth has swung backwards and forwards, like an immense stately pendulum, giving our corner of it alternate periods of intense cold and general warmth, with intermediate periods of mixed warmth and cold. At either end of each swing there were no yearly seasons. The earth is still swinging, and it is swinging toward a warm period of perpetual summer. It will arrive in about a quarter of a million years according to some scientists.

No Speed Limit in Cuba

Taxi Drivers Very Adept in Avoiding Each Other.

Havana, Cuba, claims the distinction of having solved the problem of cheap transportation more satisfactorily than any other city.

Operating within a territory whose radius is little greater than a mile, 1,000 automobiles carry one or two persons between any two points in the circle for 20 cents. Under no speed limitations, the drivers are left to their own fate, rushing back and forth through the streets, but their feet and hands become so highly developed that they can weave out of one another's way more adeptly than can be imagined.

History of the Potato

Tercentenary of the Planting of the First Potato in America to be Observed.

Next December, the tercentenary of the planting of the first potato in North America, will be celebrated. "The potato entered this Country," Dr. Lauffer said in an address before the American Association for the Advancement of Science, "not as surmised by De Candolle, through an alleged band of Spanish adventurers, but in a perfectly respectable manner from Bermuda, where it had been introduced some years previously from England. It is a prank of fortune that the potato, originally a denizen of Chile and Peru, appears as a naturalized Englishman in the United States. The potato had arrived in England about 1586, or a little later."

Crop Rotations

Remedy For Soil Drifting Is to Seed Land to Grass at Regular Intervals.

The cropping systems in vogue in the prairie provinces have in the past consisted of such arrangements as alternate crop and summer fallow, two crops of grain, and then fallow, and three crops of grain and fallow. The first system has been adopted by a number of farmers in the districts with light rainfall and freedom from early autumn frosts. This arrangement has proven fairly profitable on farms where good cultivation has been given the fallow. In the northern districts two crops of grain between summerfallows has resulted in a less rank growth of straw and earlier maturity. The third arrangement, with three crops of grain between fallows can only be successfully carried out where there is a plentiful supply of moisture or the moisture is carefully husbanded by dry farming methods. While these systems have proven fairly successful on the virgin soils of the west, farmers are finding that the increase in weeds is demanding more frequent tillage of the fallow, thus increasing the cost of production. In addition to this, the fibre is rapidly becoming depleted and soil drifting is becoming a serious menace.

The only permanent remedy for soil drifting is to seed the land to grass at regular intervals. This can best be accomplished by establishing a rotation of crops which includes a grass. On the Scott Experimental Station no difficulty has been experienced in securing grass on good land. During the past nine years 27 fields have been seeded down and only on three fields has the catch been a failure, and in every instance this was due to seedling grass after peas, the soil having been polluted with weed seeds from weeds that grew up after the peas had lodged in the late summer. The average yield of western ryegrass hay from 19 fields has amounted to 2,110 pounds per acre per year. The seed was sown with the grain. Consequently, the only charges against the hay crop were the cost of seedling, rent of land and cost of haying operations. Where the grass has been used in good rotations, the fibre has been maintained in the soil, the weeds have been kept in control with less labor, and crops of grain following the grass have shown an increase. An eight-year average, using two fields in each case, has shown what an average ryegrass seed summerfallow only gave a return of 20 bushels and 42 pounds, or approximately 3 1/4 bushels less per acre. Summerfallow and land has cost slightly more than ordinary fallow. Based on pre-war prices, this only amounted to an average of 59 cents per acre—Experimental Farm Note.

German Propaganda To Sow Dissension Among The Allies

An Underground City

Familiar Streets in London are Found Duplicated Below.

A man may spend the whole of his life in London and yet never set eyes on that wonderful underground city which stretches its maze under the "Babylon of bricks" with which he is familiar, says Tit-Bits.

He has, in fact, without realizing it, been walking over a buried city, with its network of scores of miles of streets.

And yet this silent subterranean London may be explored by anyone who will take the trouble to get the necessary permission.

We descend to our underworld beneath the Holborn Viaduct and find ourselves in a well-lighted vaulted passage, with a well-paved floor and walls faced with white bricks. Beside us run the pipes of the gas and water companies, troughs containing the wires of the Electric Company, and the telegraph wires of the General Post Office. Overhead run the pneumatic tubes through which the written telegrams are blown from the district offices to St. Martin's-le-Grand.

As we wander on we find passages branching off to right and left, each labelled with the name of the street above it. Thus, walking westward along Fleet Street, we see Shoe Lane leading off to our right, Whitefriars and Bouverie Streets to our left, and so on; each familiar London street having its duplicate in the subterranean city, and each house above having its corresponding number below. At intervals we find shafts communicating with the upper world, admitting light and air; and through them we hear the tramp of feet and the rumble of wheels.

Now we hear the muffled rust of a train beneath our feet again, through a grating we see a busy station far below us.

If we wish to carry our exploration farther we must equip ourselves in a rough smock, sea-boots, and a sou'-wester. With candle in hand, let us descend into the dark depths beneath Farringdon Street, and make our first acquaintance with the historic Fleet River, which once flowed through green fields from the heights of Hampstead.

Now we find ourselves in a vaulted channel four yards high, through which the waters of the Fleet River flow swiftly towards the Thames. As we pass the sound of falling water grows loud in the ear, and soon we are looking on a cascade which pours its waters with a roar into those of the Fleet. A waterfall beneath the hurrying traffic of Ludgate Circus is but the most conspicuous part of the underground London still remains to be seen—the great, far-spreading system of sewers. The sewers of London are so long that, in a straight line, they would stretch from Liverpool to Rome.

These sewers have a capacity so enormous that they will carry away daily the contents of a lake as large as Hyde Park and three and a quarter feet deep. Some of them have a diameter of over twelve feet; their fall ranges from two feet to fifty feet in the mile.

Now have we yet exhausted the wonders of hidden London. Deep below the city run hundreds of miles of enormous gas and water mains; and in between, at different levels, is the most wonderful network of underground railways in the world.

There are wine-vaults which contain thousands of casks of wine. Beneath St. Paul's Churchyard there is a spacious well-equipped restaurant where hundreds take their meals daily; and this is but one of many underground eating-houses, while there are bakeries which daylight never enters.

Near the Strand you have a dip in an underground bath into which Severn may have plunged seventeen centuries ago.

A favorite delicacy of the Eskimo is a dish of good, bad and even half-hatched eggs, mixed with angelica and crockberries, and thrown into a seal-skin bag filled with whale oil.

Germany pleads poverty, but she has at least money enough to keep her political secret service and foreign propaganda department. Of the latter, one of the latest disguises is "The League of German Patriots." With its imprimatur several leaflets in English have been put into circulation through the mails. One of them is specifically addressed to churchmen and appeals to all Christians to study carefully "the overwhelming proofs of Germany's innocence and the guilt of the Entente" in the matter of the responsibility for the war. It appears that the German Government, on account of its "inexperience and inefficiency in conducting a campaign," has not before "taken the proper steps to fix upon England the guilt of the World War." But now the job is to be done thoroughly. And it is to be done by the simple means of asking such questions as the following: "Do you think Christ would have approved of the Great Lie rotting the moral fibre of a whole nation?"

A longer pamphlet is intended for "Britons with a conscience," and for the "American people." Americans ought to be shocked on the implied compliment. But it is no great compliment to their understanding to be asked gravely to read such "documentary evidence" as this.

The great work of civilization and commercial development which Germany has carried on for her colonies for the benefit of all nations is being destroyed under British rule through the incapacity of the administration and greed of her capitalists. What else could be expected from the rulers of India and Ireland?

It has been plain for some time that the old German propaganda machine has been started up at full speed. But it turns out the same old transparently stupid products. We simply get further proofs of the German inability to understand the mental and moral processes of other nations; especially to understand what other people think and must think of the Germans today. Again we have "exhibitions of the serene German conviction that if you only lie stoutly enough and often enough you will be believed, and that the way to persuade those opposed to you is to begin by insulting them. The aim of the whole new effort is obvious. It is to sow dissension among the Allies, and particularly to stir up trouble between the United States and England, or France, or both, with Japan thrown in to help out. But the thing is so grotesquely timed and executed as to defeat its own purpose—unless that purpose be to excite fresh disgust with German methods.

NERVOUS PEOPLE NEED A TONIC

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Enrich the Blood, Thus Increasing Your Nervous Energy.

Nervous people who have not yet developed a disease that can be recognized and treated by the medical profession, often have great trouble in finding relief. Irritation, headache, sleeplessness, nervous headache. All these discomforts make life miserable, but are endured rather than run a doctor's bill.

Such sufferers should know the danger of such a condition, which, if allowed to persist, may result in a nervous breakdown. In this condition what is needed is rich, red blood. As a tonic for the blood and nerves, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been used with much success. They have a direct effect on the blood, and through it carry to the nerves the elements needed to restore their normal function, at the same time improving the general health. The benefits that follow the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is shown by the case of Mrs. Norman Seifried, West Montrose, Ont., who says: "It would be hard for me to overstate the benefit I have derived from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Before I began taking the pills I was very nervous, weak and run down. I could hardly do my housework, and as there is a great deal of work to do about a home on a farm, I felt very much discouraged. One day while reading a newspaper I saw an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to give them a trial. I could notice beneficial effects after taking a box of the pills, I could again do my work with ease, was no longer weak or nervous, slept well at night, and awoke in the morning feeling well and strong. I am happy to say that the pills so greatly benefited me."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine or will be sent by mail on receipt of 50 cents a box or $2.50 for six boxes by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Statistics compiled by the forest branch of the Provincial Government show that during last year 390,000 acres of timber were burned in British Columbia. This represents a loss of 236,000 feet, valued at $299,000. The damage to young growth is estimated at $186,000, or a total of $485,000, as compared with $393,000 in 1919. Of the season's fires 345, or 28 per cent, were caught and extinguished before they had reached a quarter of an acre in size, and 391, or 31 per cent, were extinguished before they had reached ten acres. Wireless telephones were tried out with satisfactory results.

After all, it would indeed be a barren victory if the co-operation of Great Britain and the United States in arms were to be followed by estrangement and veiled hostility. Reconstruct the Old Home For Longer Usefulness Reconstruction begins at home. If the old house isn't all you desire, and you can't build a new one, a little of the right kind of repairing and remodeling will readily restore it to present day standards.

Perhaps it's a new porch, a summer kitchen, a side entrance, a new roof, extra rooms in the attic or a reworking of old, cracked walls and ceilings that is needed.

The right kind of lumber used in the right way will make the change and we have all the material you will require including that knotty and crackless manufactured lumber Beaver Board, for better walls and ceilings.

Suppose you ask us about it?

Choir Concert

It was asked during the past week "Do the people know what a treat is in store for them?" It is the purpose of this article to tell them. And yet after all, it must be a case of "Come and See". The Choir of the Union Church have been practising carefully for several weeks and have been fortunate in the choice of music. The female chorus "My Morning" is a gem and "The Bowl of Roses" as attractive as its title. The male chorus "My Old Kentucky Home" will be presented in an original fashion by the "Big Four" and - others. "My Pretty Maid" is very fetching as is also "In a Longin' For' You". The combined chorus will present "The Lost Chord". No word of praise for this selection is needed. Readings, solos and duets will also be included in the program, of which it is expected a complete copy will be published in this paper next week. The proceeds of the concert will go to pay expenses already incurred. Give the choir the support they deserve, buy your ticket, and plan to be present at the concert in Union Church, Monday, May 9th, at 8.15 p. m.

A UNIQUE CELEBRATION

The removing of the debt from Union Church property gives unusual importance to the Congregational Social, to be held Friday evening of next week, at 8.15 in the Church. Two former Pastors Revs. J. P. Berry and W. A. Smith have been invited to be present. Reports from the different organizations and appointments will be received. A Historical Sketch dealing with the various stages of the Church's development will form a feature of the evening, as will also the burning of the notes thereby signifying the removal of the Church debt. An attractive program of music and readings will add to the evening's enjoyment. A cordial invitation is extended to all to be present at this pleasant function.
